

SPECIAL REFEREEING NOTE

In the case of Frontal Guillotine, Frontal Neck Crank and Cervical lock (with chokes), as mentioned in the context of the rules, the referee retains the right to determine whether, in his or her opinion, the neck is being stretched (leading to possible cervical damage) or choked.

Where the referee determines that the neck is being stretched, and that possible cervical damage could occur, the fight shall be immediately stopped and the competitor applying the submission shall be disqualified.
